What Writers Have to Say About the Effect of Alcohol in Brain Work.

The Literary Echo, a newspaper of Berlin, printed recently a symposium signed by many of the most eminent writers of poetry and prose in Germany on the question as to whether or not alcohol is an inspiration to creative literary and poetical work. Some of the opinions are given asfollows:

Karl Henckell-I dare say a good cognac has occasionally delivered mefrom an attack of stomach ache, but it has never yet carried my lyric balloon into more rarefied air. For habitual drunkards, total abstinence seems the only cure, no matter whether the tippler is a grocer of a poet.

A. Schmitthenner-Whenever I have occasionally been induced to take alcohol during the day, the result has been that both the wish and ability to work have invariably vanished. I take no stimulants apart from a bottle of light beer just before going to bed.

Detlef von Lilienacron - I never take alcohol before or during work. I have observed that it interferes with my working powers. Fritz Lienhard-I take next to no alcohol. I have no need and no desire for it. George Reiche-Alcohol may occasionally inspire this or that idea, but real work is only hindered by it. I would not do away entirely with alcoholic drinks, but the greatest moderation should be practised. F. Avenarius-Since 1 began serious work I have never taken alcoholeither before or while I am at work. It does not inspire the imagination and it does paralyze the critical facvice consul, ulty. Judging by personal experience and observation, alcohol is the greatest stupefier in existence. Dr. Karl Busse-I own with satisfaction that mine is a good German throat, which I take care to moisten every evening. I object to temperance principles, because they seem to me to go hand in hand with a certain lack of temperament. It is nonsense > to try to force a man physically and morally sound to adopt methods required for invalids and those morally weak. Otto Julius Bierbaum-I have nothing to say against people raising their spirits by the consumption of a moderate quantity of alcohol. Should do it myself if the consequences were not fatal to me. Unfortunately, alcohol-begotten hilarity does not make my heart merry, but heavy, and has the exact opposite effect of the feeling of exhibaration in rarefied mountain air or the sight of a thing of beauty, or the sound of good music, or the fragrance of certain odors. The smallest quantity of alcohol absolutely paralyzes me. It stupeties my
